

ANQI LIU

Composer | Interdisciplinary Multimedia Artist | Performer | Filmmaker | Researcher | Educator
anqiliu.com | annaduo.pro | anqiliu90@gmail.com

Described by Peter Margasak's Nowhere Street as having "veered from all conventional pathways," Dr. Anqi Liu is a composer, interdisciplinary multimedia artist, performer, photographer, filmmaker, and researcher whose work bridges composition, experimental performance, field research, and advanced sound, visual, and interactive technologies. Rooted in Inner Mongolia and sustained by long-term research with Indigenous Mongolian song and bowed-fiddle traditions, her practice spans chamber and orchestral works, electronics, modular synthesis, choir khuur, audiovisual systems, and media-based installation. Through her original framework, the Ecology of Fraysonics, Liu approaches sound as artistic material, lived relation, perceptual knowledge, and a site where fragility, memory, cultural erosion, and human endurance become audible. Her work has been released or is forthcoming on KAIROS, Longform Editions, Discreet Archive, and New Focus, and has been presented across the United States, Europe, Mexico, and Asia.

EDUCATION

- 2025 Ph.D. in Music Composition, University of California San Diego. Dissertation: Towards the Ecology of Fraysonics. Research integrates composition, Indigenous Mongolian song and bowed-fiddle traditions, timbre, language shift, cultural erosion, field research, and experimental sound practice.
- 2016 M.A. in Music Composition, Rutgers University.
- 2013 B.A. in Music Performance and Bachelor of Law (double degree), Xiamen University.

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS AND LEADERSHIP

- 2026-present Assistant Professor and Music Production Program Lead, Rocky Mountain College of Art + Design, Denver, CO. Lead the curricular and programmatic transformation of Music Production into an interdisciplinary sound hub bridging art, design, media, and technology across the College. Develop curriculum, studio-based learning, and cross-program initiatives that position sound as a creative material, research method, and professional pathway for students across disciplines.
- 2023-2026 Subject Matter Expert and Adjunct Professor, Music Production, Digital Arts + Media and Liberal Arts, Rocky Mountain College of Art + Design, Denver, CO. Supported the expansion of the BFA in Music Production; designed and taught undergraduate courses in composition, music production, theory, digital audio, sound design, acoustics, and creative DSP; designed NS3100 Acoustics of Music; co-designed MP4250 Traditional Styles: Arrangement + Orchestration; led revisions to core theory and upper-level course sequences.
- 2021-2023 Lecturer, Department of Music, University of California San Diego, La Jolla, CA. Designed and taught undergraduate courses in sound art, composition and music production, musicianship, music technologies and media, twentieth-century music, and introduction to Western music; guided students in digital synthesizer building and creative work with Pure Data and Ableton Live.
- 2017-2021 Teaching Assistant, Department of Music, University of California San Diego, La Jolla, CA. Taught and supported courses in music history, popular music, film score, music theory, sound and time, contemporary music history, harmony, and voice leading.
